Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This book is long overdue. Forty-five years after Elizabeth Kubler Ross presented her five stages of grief many counselors and support groups still use her outdated one-size-fits-all approach to an intensely personal experience. Challenging the Landscape of Loss puts grief into a new perspective. It illustrates how we can transform sorrow into a faith filled future. Author Terence Curley, a licensed mental health counselor with a doctorate in ministry, outlines the latest studies that reveal how we actually process grief. He also draws upon his own experience to provide an illuminating look at the losses we all share, and present new methods to help us find meaning in the heart of our healing.
