Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Natalie R. L. Berez invites you to engage in the language of the soul with this collection of expressive poems about love, life, and world peace. Berez published her first book of poems, One World under God, back in 1985 but had not written for a number of years when, after undergoing cardiac surgery and ending up in a skilled nursing facility, she suddenly found her poetic talent revived. She credits Dr. Walter Kempner as her inspiration, the person who rekindled her determination to persevere and encouraged her to take up the pen once again. The result is this assemblage of over eighty poems that are powerful in their ability to express a passion for living in a complex world. Whether speaking eloquently of preventing another holocaust or celebrating freedom, God's love, or the strength to face death, each of these poems embodies the author's life-affirming sense of contributing to the betterment of the world through the arts. While lovers of poetry from all walks of life will be deeply moved by the works of this woman who has rediscovered her poetic voice, senior citizens will be particularly inspired by the offerings of The Soul That Found Itself.
