Excerpt: .does show that a. part of appellee s work was to sharpen the drills with which he worked and that he had always sharpened all his tools in the shop and usually on this particular wheel; that the superintendent was frequently about and saw appellee grinding his tools on this wheel, and that on one occasion the superintendent specially directed appellee to grind a drill on this wheel. We think that the evidence is amply sufficient to show that appellee was acting within the scope of his employment at the time he received his injury. It is also urged that the evidence shows that ap16. pellee was guilty of contributory negligence in choosing a dangerous way of sharpening his drill when a safe way had been provided by the master. We have discussed the legal phase of this question in passing upon the motion...
