Excerpt from A Book of Dorcas Dishes: Family Recipes, Contributed by the Dorcas Society of Hollis and Buxton The cooking in small hotels and boarding houses along our countryside does not compare with that in England or on the Continent, and we are constantly criticised for the small amount of nourishment and large amount of dyspepsia with which we furnish our farming and laboring classes. The devising of a good liberal diet, simple but varied, is one of the most important ends to which the mistress of a household can devote her energies. Is Dorcas doing all she might in this matter? How can we inspire and help our brothers, husbands, fathers to bring back the old garden to its once noble estate? Where are the rows of currant and raspberry bushes we used to see at the side or back of the house? We need not raise small fruits for the market if we lack time or strength, land or labor, but how about raising things for the family and the growing children? When I was a girl there were always a few black and red currant bushes in the garden, with blackberries, raspberries, or strawberries. There was a single pear, or crab apple, quince, or plum tree in the orchard, and a Concord grape-vine over a porch. Citron melons were grown then, and there was a barberry bush planted by the kitchen door; and what delicious preserves for the long winter came from those quince and apple trees, those citrons and damsons and pomegranates! Green and ripe tomatoes helped to swell the list, and mother had only to buy lemons and sugar and ginger to fill the goody-cupboard to...
