Not illustrated. 1876 Excerpt: .for exhibition at the College of Pharmacy in September next. You state that it is not now known whether the samples will ultimately be returned to the makers, or be presented to the College of Pharmacy, or be sold to pay expenses. In reply I have to state--1st. That samples, as such, have the privilege of free entry only when of no recognized or actual commercial value. 2d. Articles which may be imported without payment of duty for exhibition by associations organized for the promotion of science, art, or industry are limited to statuary, paintings, and photographic pictures. (HeyPs Tariff, 1812.) 3d. If the samples are to be given to said college, to remain as the permanent property thereof, and a definite arrangement to that effect shall be made before importation, I am of opinion that upon that fact being proven to the satisfaction of the collector of customs at Boston, they may be admitted free under the law which exempts from duty philosophical and scientific apparatus, instruments and preparations specially imported in good faith for the use of any society or institution incorporated or established for philosophical, educational, scientific, or literary purposes or encouragement of the fine arts, and not intended for sale. --(1708.) 4th. If not intended for the use of said college, such samples could not be removed from the custody of the customs officers without payment of duty whether ultimately to be sold in the United States to pay expenses, or...
