Reviews

A top quality ebook and the font used was fascinating to read through. It is written in easy terms and not confusing. It's been written in a remarkably easy way in fact it is simply after I finished reading through this publication through which actually altered me, alter the way I believe.

Neuware - Conifer cell wall contains 15 35 % lignin. For wood processing industry, varying lignin content in raw material causes problems, as it makes it more difficult to assure a uniform quality of end products. Yet variation in lignin content in trees has been studied only little, mainly because the traditional laboratory methods for lignin content determination are very laborious and thus too costly for large sets of samples. In this work, we present a way of constructing a rapid and reproducible method for lignin content determination: we build a principal component regression (PCR) model with which lignin content in wood samples can be predicted from the Fourier-transformed infrared (FTIR) spectra measured on the samples. We strive to present the statistical theory needed in model construction (estimation, selection, testing) and lignin content prediction in an explicit and precise way. Hence, the work should be useful to wood scientists and statisticians with similar modelling endeavours. 60 pp. Englisch.
