Dept. of Commerce, Technology Administration, National Institute of Standards and Technology, 1998. OCLC Number: ocm40306282 Subject: Information technology -- Security measures -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Information Technology Security Training Requirements Second, the critical differences between Training and Education are often overlooked. Education is clearly identified in this new model as a separate learning level, while recognizing that the education levels applicability is limited to an organizations designated IT security specialists. Providing formal education to this group is outside the purview of most Federal agency training programs - with some notable exceptions among national security-related agencies. This document takes the view that education (as distinguished from training) and associated on-the-job experience are essential for IT security specialists to be able to fulfill their roles in an effective manner. The provision of specific criteria for the education level is beyond the scope of NISTs mandate and, therefore, is beyond the scope of this document. Provides an integrated framework (planning tool) to identify training needs throughout the workforce and ensure that everyone receives appropriate training. The model presented in this document relates job function to required IT security knowledge. This allows managers to identify the training needed to fulfill their IT security responsibilities, to understand the consequences of denying or deferring training, and to plan and schedule training according to organizational priorities. Provides a course development tool. Course developers can readily identify the learning outcomes expected for individuals in various roles with varying responsibilities. This will facilitate the development of IT security course material targeted to the needs of the Federal workforce and will encourage the development of plug and play train. . . This...
