Hence, the responsibility of the pharmaceutical companies to guarantee the safety of their drugs for human consumption is enormous. Unfortunately, there are cases from the history proving that due to improper testing and human negligence drugs caused more harm than good. Even in the present day, these tragedies are worth an examination in order to remember and learn from past mistakes and to prevent their recurrence. Many people believe that street drugs are 'an entirely different class than prescription drugs, and they believe that pharmaceutical companies would never manufacture or sell street drugs'. Actually the well-known pharmaceutical giant, Bayer AG, is responsible for the most addictive and feared drug nowadays - heroin. Exactly 50 years ago, on 1. October 1957, another...
