Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: .the proper supervision of the milk supply, it is necessary that the location of every place where milk is produced or sold be known. This is best accomplished by the permit system. The supervising authorities can keep in touch with the producer and dealer by means of score cards made out in duplicate, one copy of which must be furnished the producer or dealer to whose establishment it relates, but a discreet supervising officer will wisely supplement these score cards by personal letters in appropriate cases. The office copies of the score cards serve also the useful purpose of enabling any interested citizen to ascertain by visiting the Health Department just how careful his milk man is and the quality of the milk that he supplies. Whether it is or is not desirable to inform each producer and dealer of the results of chemical and bacteriological analyses of his product is debatable. The producer or dealer may utilize such reports for the purpose of misleading his customers by displaying the good reports and concealing those that are bad. If such reports are to be furnished, they should be consecutively numbered, so as to enable a customer or a prospective customer to detect any such fraud. For a small community, the public may possibly be kept sufficiently informed as to the condition of the several farms and dairies from which its milk supply is derived by the posting of bulletins in the city hall or the post-office,...
