Createspace. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 308 pages. Dimensions: 10.0in. x 7.0in. x 0.7in. Then Sings my Song is a book containing two portions. One part is filled with heart warming true stories which honor the lives of seniors who have been placed in assisted living, day programs, or nursing homes. The stories are gleaned from decades of experiences in dealing with and relating to individuals afflicted with physical illness and losses but mostly those coping with dementia. I have been blessed to share life with these individuals in my professional capacity as an administrator activities director and spiritual director. These precious lives provided me with insight, inspiration and empathy, even in an institutionalized environment. Enjoy my insights based on Maslows Hierarchy of Needs which builds truth in our needs for love, belonging, self esteem, self acceptance, even in institutionalized environment. My book is also extremely valuable to families who are experiencing the evidence of decline in their love ones and are worn with care and don't know where to turn and how to deal with true feelings of guilt. But above all this I found something I overlooked. That these individuals drew me to the water they drank when they were thirsty, the food they ate when they were hungry, and the hand they held when they were fearful and lonely. Come sit by the bedside and hear the quiet breath of a soul making their passage from this world into the next, peacefully with dignity and honor. Come hear the laughter out of the rooms of the rooms of the nursing home. Witness a choir being born from the residents in long term care and follow them on the road to entertain other residents. Come share the holidays, friendships, shopping trips starting with a regular...
