

Integration in Canada of Muslim women immigrants from the Middle East

By Torkaman Dehnavi, Zeinab

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | The case of Middle Eastern adult women in Canadian Job market/Academia | The purpose of this research is to investigate the extent to which Muslim Middle Eastern immigrant women are integrated in Canadian society, such as in its labor force. This research examines some of the difficulties that this group of Muslim women may encounter in finding suitable occupations which may require them to register in graduate schools in order to gain Canadian credentials, and therefore fit better into the Canadian job market. The research includes both qualitative and quantitative parts. In the qualitative section, some interviews with Muslim Middle Eastern women from previous research, the notion of the veil in Islam, as well as its meanings in diaspora according to some Canadian women scholars are examined. In the quantitative section, the research results are based on PUMF, of the 2001 and 2006 Censuses and for analyzing the data, SPSS was used as the statistical tool. It was shown that the above mentioned group, do not necessarily suffer from a high level of underemployment, which might be partly because of the multicultural character of Canada, as well as being distanced from September...
