

The Mystery of Christian Faith: A Tangible Union with the Invisible God

By Paul Ungar

University Press of America, United States, 2008. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 230 x 156 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Since the time of bloody persecutions right up to the post-modern age, each historical period posed its particular challenge to Christianity. Psychologically, Christians vitality in overcoming these challenges came primarily from what is perhaps the deepest mystery of faith itself-the believers union with God. The postmodern positivist questions this mystery, and rejects the possibility of communication with a non-sensorial and therefore non-existing God. Agnostics proclaim, One man s religion, is another s delusion. Therefore, the modern challenge for Christians is to explain how God, despite being invisible, is experientially present in the life of believers. Although the experience of living in a relationship with an invisible God is a profound one for Christians, it seems nonsensical to those who emphasize the primacy of sensory experience. Paul Ungar s extensive scholarly training equips him remarkably well to explore where, when, how, and through which psychological functions communication with the spiritual God factually occur. Ungar s The Mystery of Christian Faith: A Tangible Union with the Invisible God is an apologetic work on the borderline of theology,...
