Here we are upon the threshold of the Junior Year. We shudder at the thought Junior for as many who have gone before, tell us of the much dreaded Professor Buck and his calculus, and assure us a reception as cold as the climate of Siberia; they tell us that this is the Slough of Despond over which few can ever hope to pass. Having put hand to plow, however we venture to stem the tide. But we are not the only ones to try the realities of the dreaded work four new members have joined the ranks. Dickey hails from West Tennessee. His serious manner and studious habits, despite his extreme youth soon tell that he means to succeed not only as a student in college, but also in his chosen profession as a lawyer.
