Excerpt from Fairy Tale of the White Man: Told From the Gates of Sunset As we stand gazing upon the glory of the sun in his path going down into his night-palace in the great Pacific, a question arises. The children of my neighbors want to know how far did we have to come to get here, in the first place For though we are native-born ourselves, yet each one has a tale to tell of parents who traveled far, and some farther than far in order to get us this fair land of California as a birthright. And before those grandparents also, was a great journey traveled, always in this direction. Although English is our native tongue, yet other languages are all around us. Although we call ourselves Americans, yet there is a mingled strain of Europe in our veins. Although we have German, Anglo-Saxon, Scotch, French, Spanish, Norse, Italian, Russian and other ancestors, yet for the sake of harmony we declare ourselves to be Irish and our favorite color, green. This brings us all so close together that we begin to...
