Excerpt: .and have each of them make a plate until she can get one with a good suckage. If you are the fortunate individual your reward will come within twenty-four hours. She will tell her neighbors and friends what a good dentist you are, and these will believe it, too, on account of the better talking of the old lady with her new teeth. This is the kind of advertising you want. The filling of teeth is, with me, a secondary consideration. I have followed all branches of dentistry. It requires ten times the skill to do proper prosthetic work than it does to fill teeth.--W. H. Taggart in Items of Interest. Porcelain Porcelain inlays should be used in all con EPitome-spicious cavities where gold would be objectionable; many otherwise beautiful mouths have been rendered hideous by a too lavish display of yellow metal. For slender teeth, with poor structural conditions, porcelain will strengthen and sustain when fillings of other materials would fail. When the physical condition of the patient will not permit the nervous strain of a long sitting for condensation of gold. In pyorrhea, when the teeth are badly loosened making condensation of gold next to impossible. To attain success in this work, one must study closely every detail, mastering the digital technique of each step before attempting the subsequent and more difficult cases. Extension of cavity beyond contact point. Thorough separation to admit of free access. Definite and symmetrical margins. Square and secure seating...
