Createspace. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 332 pages. The Vietnam War winds down. Legendary FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is dead and a new director makes major changes in the Bureau, including the formerly unthinkable, the appointment of women as agents. This impacts the Philadelphia bank robbery squad. Two agents just graduated from training school, arrive and are assigned the squad. One is Robert Lee a former army officer the other, Helene Stuart, an ex-nun. She is not welcomed by most of the squad. Ben Douglas is assigned as her training agent. Lee is assigned to Douglas partner Jeff Bauer. Three men who shoot and kill a teller rob a bank. The case is assigned to Douglas. He, Stuart, much of the squad and Philadelphia police, start the hunt. Two of the robbers are swiftly caught. The third bandit shoots and badly wounds two agents. In the hunt for the shooter they search a car barn holding out of service streetcars. In an exchange of gunfire Douglas shoves Stuart out of the line of fire. The robber escapes. Douglas and Stuart play a major part in locating and arresting him in a porn movie house. By...
