STEPPING INTO THE UNKNOWN (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Jim Rapp, in his latest collection of poems, Stepping into the Unknown, follows a familiar pattern, organizing the poems into broad sections: 1) Connections - poems celebrating friendship and the many ways and days we set aside to enjoy them, 2) Habitat - looking at the world in which we live, celebrating the its beauty and utility, 3) Watchmen on the Walls - prophetic thoughts about the cosmos we have constructed and how it serves or, too often, fails to serve us well, 4) The World s Oldest Profession - poems that bore in on the flawed political system and shines a hard light on self-serving politicians whose professions of love for our country ring false, in fact sound . . . well, self-serving, 5) Speaking with Foot in Mouth - not surprisingly sees the foibles that cause us to laugh at ourselves even while seeking to pull our hair out, 6) Stalled at the Trailhead - addresses uncertainty in our daily lives, 7) The Broken Body - considers the faults and short-comings of the Christian church and the grace that God has bestowed upon it, making it His Body, The Body of Christ, despite its own brokenness. Jim s poetry is accessible but thoughtful enough to sometimes require multiple readings to fully apprehend the truth it conveys. All of his poetry is a reaching for the truth, even those that might, upon first blush seem obvious or trivial. It is his belief that real life is impossible apart from truth; that the constant, conscious and unconscious, efforts of all mankind are aimed at discovering truth. It is his hope that these poems will open minds in ways that enlighten...
