Excerpt: . . . the policy, rely upon even a definite and distinct verbal consent to additional insurance, and be misled thereby so that it would be a fraud upon the insured for the principal to insist that it was not estopped from making the defense that the insured, assuming to act upon a verbal agreement which he was legally bound to know would not justify his conduct, voluntarily and deliberately violated the terms of the policy This question has been confidently answered in the negative by the New York Court of Appeals. Quinlan v. Insurance Co., 133 N. Y. 356. But however this may be, it is clear that in the present case not even a verbal consent on the part of the company's agent was shown. The case of City Fire Insurance Co. v. Carrugi, 41 Ga. 660 (followed in Swain v. Macon Fire Ins. Co.....
