Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Fort Ancient in Warren County, O Things curious to some one have been found ever since the world began. tis common to look for fresh dirt in cemeteries; and quick we are to decipher something about a grave, that we think leads to a knowl edge of whose remains rest there. If we have traveled a great way to reach the spot, we select something to carry away with us, to lay up as a memento that we visited the depository of the dead. These things serve as reminders of the past, and lead to history. I suppose if a mound of earth of great size was discovered to have grown up in the night While we slept, our curiosity would reach an unbounded pitch in a few minutes to see and know something more about it; and inquiry would never end in our day. Who built the mound, and for what purpose was it built? If the mound was very large and very beautiful, no one would think to mar it in the least. All would consent to let it remain for future generations to look atf And the date of its building would certainly be kept. And the curiosity-seeker would find a guide anywhere that would direct his or her steps to the mound. We slept not while the ancients were building the mounds we find, but our civilization has awakened out of gloom a country once lying in wilderness and wild, where these mounds are discovered. And as we grew not up with their history, or anything said of them, the pitch of curiosity behoves the effort being made to ascertain who the builders Were. The finding skeletons...
