Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Earliest Years at Vassar: Personal Recollections The more I recall of the early times, the more unwritable any account becomes by reason of the personal element. The charm and delight lay chie?y in the close confidence of mutual friendly relations. A chiel among us taking notes would not have been tolerated in those days. I never expected to regret not keeping a a journal, but I do now as I realize how much precious and interesting history has been lost in consequence. One of the first teachers in the Latin depart ment had to deal with a student so literal as to afford much amusement by her continual habit of asking, What is the exact date of this event? One day in class, allusion was made to the story of Deucalion and Pyrrha, when the girl unthinkingly began her usual query. The teacher despairingly interrupted, -thank beav en, Miss there is a period in history in which there are no dates.
