Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Inaugural Address Delivered at the Opening of the Southern University, Greensboro, Ala We meet to-day to inaugurate the Southern University. The period of anxious, hopeful preparation is past, The time for action has come. This brilliant assembly, these venerable ministers of religion, these honored trustees, this company of young men, this group of learned Professors - all, witnesses of these Inaugural solemnities, are but the representatives to fancy, of that august cloud of witnesses, - our contemporaries in various parts of the land, our successors in generations to come, who hang over the scene with solemn interest. To this spot, henceforth hallowed as the shrine of letters, of science and philosophy, the sanctuary of that divine Truth which encompasses and ennobles all the rest, come from far the thoughts and sympathies, the wishes and prayers of patriotism and piety. And if there be less of objective glitter and force of impression in the circumstances which surround us than might be found in the coronation of an Emperor or the inauguration of a President, to a profound thinker who grasps remote results and ultimate consequences to society and the individual, to civilization and to Christianity, there would be in the opening of a great seat of learning a force of moral impression which no military pomp or civic splendors could enhance. We are about putting in motion instrumentalities noiseless as the vernal influences, but as potent. The subject of these agencies is the human mind in its plastic, formative period - the most precious thing on earth. The end aimed at is the culture of this mind, the unfolding of its capabilities, the placing it in...
