OCLC Number: (OCoLC)45801517 Subject: Nuclear energy -- Research -- Laboratories -- Security measures -- United States. Excerpt: . . . 11 Thank you again Mr. Chairman, we are now ready for your questions. PTON Mr. U. Dr. Tarter - by the way, Mr. Podonsky, we did want to receive copies of your testimony in advance. Would it be possible maybe for one of our clerks to get a copy of your opening remarks there, and we will make copies for members here in time for the questions. Could someone maybe do that for me TESTIMONY OF C. BRUCE TARTER ARTER Mr. T. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Let me begin with a brief statement which is, I think, part of the opening page in my testimony. But, as I think all of you know, we are a national security laboratory. Nearly all of the work of the laboratory is focused on national security. And my particular highest responsibility each year is to certify certainly to the President of the United States that the United States stockpile of nuclear weapons is safe and re-liable. That is the focus of the laboratory. And obviously being able to carry out operations in a safe and secure manner is an essential ingredient in making that annual certification to the President which we have now been able to make - this year will be the fourth year we have formally made that recommendation on the weapons in our stockpile. To do that, we have three kinds of security at the laboratory. There is physical security, there is cybersecurity, and there is es-sentially what I would call personnel security. And I think the OSE evaluation focused primarily on physical security and cybersecurity, and...
