Xlibris Corporation. Paperback. Condition: New. 66 pages. Dimensions: 8.8in. x 5.8in. x 0.2in. One of the main interests in this book focuses on how to persuade parents to get engaged in their child's education. Many authors have studied this evidence that shows this to be an excellent opportunity, for a parent to visit the classroom teacher. . . The more involved parents are the more they help the academic achievements of their child. This book gives the most suggestions of how to get parents interested in spending time in their child's school and classroom. Also it shows results of how to work with parents and to keep their interest in the schools. My interpretation of these methods stated in my book is the best approach to increase parent involvement and be successful. The Parent Community School Connections Committee was an important part of decreasing the educational gap between students. This item ships from multiple locations.
