LL hail, sweet Christmas Bells! I love the song that swells, With throbbing music on the listening wind; The magic of your chime, Bridging the lapse of time, Provides a subtle link, on which the mind May traverse back long streams of day and night, With instant speed, that mocks times tardy flight. Borne backward on your strains, I seem on Bethlehems plains, Seated with watching shepherds on the ground; Sudden upon our sight, Drops down celestial light, That with soft radiance touches all around; Like heavens plains shine those of earth the while, Lit with effulgence of Gods glorious smile. To calm our waking fears, Upon our startled ears, Falls, softly clear, an angels dulcet voice! It bids our sorrows cease, And fills our breasts with peace, Bidding the erring sons of men rejoice; For He is come, Whom holy men...
