Tuku-Yet returns--Death of flosoco--His burial--Tuku-Yet goes ta Tenoni--Reported offer from the Dutch--My own illness--The Waylah men--Our amusements--Cricket--Pebble-polishing--Easter--A pistol-shot--An elephant hunt--Great storm--Visitors--Return of the Pegasus--The river overflows--Stores arrive in abundance--Death of Fowler--Letters--Death of Wells--Attempt to escape--Three men get away--Captured--A new house--The rajah refuses to let us go--Death of Armstrong. On the afternoon of Sunday, the 23rd of March, our attention was drawn towards a group of strangers on the opposite bank, evidently awaiting the arrival of a canoe to cross over to our island. They turned out to be Tuku-Yet and some of his followers; and on the Monday an occurrence of a melancholy nature took place, which greatly damped the spirits of all hands. Tuku-Yet had paid us a visit, and in his broken English was relating to us his adventures since we last saw him, before the bombardment. Suddenly...
