Excerpt from Remarks Made on a Short Tour Between Hartford and Quebec: In the Autumn of 1819 During the excursion, which produced this small volume, I began, with an intention of sketching a series of short articles, in some degree popular and general in their character, and still of such a cast as would admit of their being thrown, occasionally, into the American Journal of Science. Before the close of the journey, these remarks, although written hastily, in public houses, and in steamboats, became too extensive for the object first intended. For reasons, with which it is, perhaps, unnecessary to trouble the reader, it has since been thought advisable to print them, after due revision, in the form in which they now appear. The geological notices are, with few exceptions, placed under distinct heads, and may, without inconvenience, be omitted by those to whom they are uninteresting. But, the geological features of a country, being permanent - being intimately connected with its scenery, with its leading interests, and even with the very character of its population, have a fair claim to delineation in...
