Excerpt from The Onlooker, Vol. 1: A Literary Journal of Independent Critical Opinion on Public Affairs; November, 1920 Two years after the Great War finds the world in a state of chaos. The swimmer has touched bottom and found his feet, but is wearied, spent, still half-dazed, half-blinded, and at the mercy of the undertow, which tosses him hither and yon. By and by he will crawl painfully over the hard shingle with bruised and bleeding feet; stretch out on the warm sand and take possession for good, it is to be hoped, of a new continent. And it will be no happy isle - make no mistake about that E but a realm demanding all the old qualities of steadfastness, hard work, sacrifice and loyalty to the best that is in the race. The swimmer is the modern man-child; the ocean the tremu dous psychological upheaval caused by the war, and the island the changed conditions of human existence on this planet. What we are all going through is readjustment; and the most of us see nothing exhilarating in the process. Adjustment, to be sure, is always painful; has to be; but in the end (if there be such a thing as real progress) salutary - if not for the individual, still, for the race. No doubt each nation considers its own situation worst. There is a curious unanimity of pessimism at the present time. By all the rules of the game the United States ought to be in the happiest case of all at the present moment. Is it? Not if its own publicists and thinkers are to be believed! The people of the United States were late getting...
