Its main purpose is the transportation of the sugar required at the factory, but one occasionally sees it used for the delivery of small cases of chocolate absurdly out of proportion with the dimensions of the body and chassis. The driver told me that the lorry had been running since Christmas without having given the slightest trouble. The back wheels have twin rubber tires. On May 8th, at the first general meeting of the Allgemeine Berliner Omnibus Gesellschaft since the reconstruction of the directorate, one of the shareholders charged the management with having introduced self-propelled vehicles without careful investigation of their effectiveness and working costs, whilst another characterised the abandonment of the 10-pfennig tariff as tactically false,...
