Excerpt from The Child, the Family, and the Court, Vol. 1: A Study of the Administration of Justice in the Field of Domestic Relations; General Findings and Recommendations A number of elements unite to make these questions of peculiar importance in the United States at the present time: (1) Legal theory is entering a new stage of development, the era of sociological, or social, jurisprudence, in which it will consider more than ever before the realization of human interests. (2) There is a growing pressure from the cities for organization of justice and improvement of legal procedure to meet the exigencies of urban development. (3) The jurisdictions of the courts overlap, and different judges pass upon different angles of what is really one problem of family life. (4) A new judicial technique is developing, in which the courts rely in large part upon such nonlegal sciences as medicine and psychology. (5) The last quarter century has witnessed the establishment of a number of special and in many respects novel tribunals, including particularly juvenile courts and Courts of domestic relations.
