Excerpt: . presupposes, such an anointing--if anointing it was--as that described by St. John.1 Much less, surely, can it be held to exclude the intention, recorded in St. Mark and St. Luke, of the women to anoint--a circumstance probably left unnoticed because never carried into effect,2 or because soon overshadowed by greater events. The point is very immaterial as to when precisely the purchases of spices were made. The internal probability, as Professor Lake would say, is that the purchases were commenced in the short space that remained before the Sabbath began, and were completed after the Sabbath ended. Most likely some women made purchases at one time, others at another. In stating, however, that they returned, and prepared spices and ointments, 8 St. Luke is probably not intending to fix any precise time: perhaps had not the means of doing it. The next verse...
