Bioactive Heterocycles V

By -

Springer-Verlag GmbH Okt 2007, 2007. Buch. Condition: Neu. Neuware - This volume contains 10 chapters. The contributions are from researchers - most in their respective fields and the chapters contain high quality reviews on topics related to the chemo-biological studies of several different heterocyclic groups. The first chapter from Saracoglu reviews the functionalization of indoles and the pyrroles via Michael additions, as these compounds have potential for their biological activities. In the second chapter Menendez reviews the chemistry of the well known indolines. Topcu and Demirkiran, in the third chapter, describe the chemistry and biological studies of lignans from Taxus species, including their biosynthesis and recent strategies for the synthesis of lignans. Lignans are very important class of molecules, as they have a very diverse spectrum of biological activities, such as antitumor, antiviral, hepatoprotective, antioxidant, antiulcer, anti-allergen, anti-platelet, and anti-osteoporotic activities. In the next chapter Suzen describes the antioxidant activities of synthetic indole derivatives and their possible mechanisms of action. In chapter 6 Gonzalez et al. presents a comprehensive review on the chemistry and biology of the quinoxaline 1,4-dioxide and phenazine 5,10-dioxide type molecules. They also discuss the mode of action, structure-activity studies and other relevant chemical and biological properties for such molecules. In the chapter 6, Khanbriy discusses the anti-angiogenic and telomerase inhibitory activities of quinoline and its analogues. Liu et al., in chapter 7, briefly reviews some aspects of studies of bioactive marine sponge furanosesterterpenoids from the last 10 years, including their total syntheses. Pujol et al. in chapter 8, reviews the chemistry, origin and antiviral activities of naturally occurring sulfated polysaccharides for the prevention and control of viral infections such as HIV-1 and -2, human cytomegalovirus (HCMV), dengue virus (DENV), respiratory syncytial virus (RSV), and influenza A virus. In chapter 9 Hamdi et al. describes the synthesis and biological activities of the heterocyclic and vanillin ether coumarins. In the last chapter, Orhan et al....
