Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 64: September 11, 1902 From the Apostles we turn to the fathers, and later teachers in the church and secure their evidence. The earlier of these quote from the gospels and the epistles without mentioning from whom they quote, and sometimes with little verbal accuracy. Their use of the books proves, however, that they regarded them as Scripture for the guidance of the church. This evidence is most valuable in attesting the antiquity of our New Testament, since its books must have existed. Long before to have been so venerated by these worthy writers. Here are a few examples of their quotations. Clement of Rome, the earliest of writers after the Apostles, says, Remem ber the words Of our Lord Jesus Christ; for He said, woe to that man; it were better for him that he had not been born than that he should offend one of my elect. It were better for him that a millstone should be tied about his neck and that he should be drowned in the sea than that he...
