WITH the great flood of new preparations which have swamped the profession in recent years, many of which are worthless or no better than many drugs and preparations we already possess, it is refreshing to come across some which are an undoubted acquisition to our means of combating the great army of diseases which the practitioner meets with in his daily round. No two cases of disease can be treated in exactly the same way and with the same drugs, as, in addition to a certain specific symptom in either case to which a certain drug may be applicable, there may be others which forbid a certain line of treatment being carried out in an individual example--e.g., a fistula in an otherwise robust patient and the same condition in a patient with advanced phthisis and pyelitis. It is perfectly obvious that the treatment in the two cases must be entirely different. The first case is a very simple matter, while the latter is a much more serious condition, both as to prognosis and treatment. In the former, a simple operation is all that is necessary, with proper cleanliness, dressing, and, perhaps, a tonic; in the latter something more is required, and the condition of the urine will require a powerful drug that will act beneficially in controlling the putrid condition of the urine, preventing decomposition, and so promote healing of the ulcerated surface in the kidney. In urotropine we...
