

Stones and Bones: Italy Through My Eyes

By John Vincent Palozzi

Createspace. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 120 pages. In 1996 I had the opportunity to travel to Italy with my mother, father and brother Vince. I spent two weeks in Sicily visiting my mothers side of the family and two weeks in Italy where I met my fathers relatives and visited Rome, Florence, Venice, Milan and points in-between. We went to my Sicilian cousins Summer home a few miles from the village where he lived. It was newly constructed and was basically one large room with a long table and chairs in it. It was not a place to live, it was a place to party. Outside was a huge double wide barbecue pit and various arrangements of tables and chairs. Exactly next door to it, on the other side of the driveway, was an old building that was in total ruin. It had no roof and was missing most of one wall and tops of the other walls. It had probably been bombed in WWII. There were vines growing on it and the vegetation around it was wild. I asked him, Are you going to tear that old building down He looked at me in...
