Excerpt from Drexel Institute of Art, Science, and Industry, Philadelphia: Year-Book of the Departments and Courses of Instruction, 1899-1990 The Drexel Institute was founded in 1891, by Anthony J. Drexel, for the promotion of education in art, science, and industry. The chief object of the Institute is the extension and improvement of industrial education as a means of opening better and wider avenues of employment to young men and women. In accordance with the founder s desire, however, the plan of organization has been made comprehensive, providing liberal means of culture for the masses by means of evening classes, free lectures and concerts, the library, and the museum. The building was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies, December 15, 1891. A beginning was made in some of the departments in February, 1892, and in September of the same year work was regularly begun in most of the departments included in the general scheme of instruction. The Institute is situated on Chestnut street, at the corner of Thirty-second street. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
