Transition Care for Children with Special Health Needs: Technical Brief Number 15 (Paperback)

By Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, U S Department of Health and Human Services

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .There is no uniformly accepted age at which pediatric care is inappropriate and adult care should be sought for every patient. Nonetheless, some practices do have age cut-offs, and there comes a time when adult providers may be better able to serve the needs of patients whose medical concerns are more adult in nature, including for example reproductive and other issues. In addition, the inclusion of adults in pediatric practices can create discomfort and challenges for other pediatric patients and their families, and pediatricians can find themselves addressing medical issues of adults for which they are less prepared. Therefore, at some point, most pediatric patients should and do move into the adult care system. An effective transition process from a pediatric to an adult health system should ensure continuity of developmental and age-appropriate care. In 2002 the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), and the American College of Physicians (ACP) coauthored a consensus statement: The goal of transition in health care for young adults with special health care needs is to maximize lifelong functioning and potential through...
