An afternoon of soft, warm autumn skies, aglow with the radiance of the setting sun, and brilliant in violet and gold, had been followed by a cold, gray morning. Of a sudden a cloud the size of a hand had mounted clear of the horizon, and called together its fellows. An unseen herald in the east blew a blast, and winds and sea awoke. By nine oclock a gale was blowing. By ten Babcocks men were bracing the outer sheathing of the coffer-dam, strengthening the derrickguys, tightening the anchor-lines, and clearing the working platforms of sand, cement, and other damageable property. The course masonry, fortunately, was above the water-line, but the coping was still unset and the rubble backing of much of the wall unfinished. Two weeks of constant work were necessary before that part of the structure contained in the first section of the contract would be entirely safe for the coming winter. Babcock doubled his gangs, and utilized every hour of low water to the utmost, even when the men stood waist deep. It was his only hope for completing the first section that season. After that would come the cold, freezing the mortar, and ending everything. Tom Grogan performed wonders. Not only did she work her teams far into the night, but during all this bad weather she stood throughout the day on the unprotected dock, a mans...
