Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Religion and Poetry: Being Selections Spiritual and Moral, From the Poetical Works of the Rev. R. Montgomery, M. An. Oxon Mr. Montgomery's keen, poetical perception of the beauties of nature is deeply felt in this, as in so many other passages in his works. Yet, however many beauties of this order may present themselves in this author's pages, it cannot be denied that his religious, his eminently christian, and (used in no party sense) his peculiarly evangelical tone of thought and feeling, is what mainly distinguishes him from the common herd of his contemporaries - nay, what has affixed a characteristic and distinctive mark to his poetry regarded as a whole, which will probably secure him his own peculiar and separate niche (if we may so word it) in the literature of his native country. Of course it is not to be inferred that the religious grandeur of a Milton, or the mild and fervent piety of a Keble, combined in either case with whatever special views, is disparaged by this statement. But it is contended, that a systematic and intellectual exposition of Christianity in the guise of poetry, has nowhere been so attempted, or so consistently achieved as in the poems of Robert Montgomery. It is for this cause that the distinctive title of this work (whether Poetry and Religion or The Religion of Poetry I know not), has been assumed.
