Excerpt: . . . delivered and recorded, conveying said premises pursuant to such agreement. (3 R. S. 9th ed. 2640. ) By virtue of these provisions the plaintiff asserts that his assignor, who performed labor and furnished materials in moving and altering the dwelling upon the property under the contract with the vendee in possession, acquired a lien against the interest of the vendor. The vendee, Christina McNally, who contracted with the plaintiffs assignor, did not answer, and does not contest the claim of the plaintiff. Brid-get Slater, the vendor of the premises, alone defends and contests the right of the plaintiff to establish a lien upon her interest in the property. The provision above quoted from the 5th section of the Mechanics Lien Law did not provide for or embrace the case at bar. This provision was not intended to embrace, and does not embrace, the case in which the owner in fee of land has contracted in good faith to sell and convey it to a vendee, who has the right of possession of the land under the contract, provided the contract of sale was executed and possession thereunder given before the contract was made by the vendee for constructing or altering the buildings, and provided the contract of sale does not provide that the vendee shall erect a building on the premises. This provision of the statute was intended to provide for and embrace a class of contracts common in the cities of this State, by...
