M., D. D., F. A. A. S Correspondence between botanists at that time was very active, and the letters which were interchanged comprised the principal stock of knowledge then available. The letters which have been preserved are very instructive, even at this date. Not only do we find in them the growth of botanical science, but such notes about the state of civilization as to roads, forests, dwellings, farms, taverns, and the social condition of the people, which make them treasure houses for the general historian. The correspondence between John Bartram, and Collinson, Humphrey Marshall, Ellis, Benj. Franklin, and other notables of the day, with an editorial by Dr. Darlington, is one of the few volumes which have preserved letters in a printed form, and few volumes give a more satisfactory insight into the state of our social affairs than this one. It is not a complete panorama, but the passing allusions to what these itinerant botanists saw, gives a keen relish to their work. It is to be regretted that such a small part of this correspondence is preserved, for like that of Mearns and Curtis, much of it is long since inaccessible. En passant it is interesting to observe how little notice these pioneers of science took of the current of political affairs. For although the travels of Wm. Bartram through the Carolinas and Georgia were made during the war of the Revolution, our zealous botanist has no ear for the war-like preparations which must have resounded in the air, but was totally absorbed in what Nature had so lavishly spread out before him. For him...
