Excerpt: . . . sec. 684 are in complete harmony. Under them we find the procedure to be that the evidence is taken down, not, word for word, but in narrative form by the justice, then read over to the witness and any necessary corrections made and then signed by the witness. Then after all the witnesses have signed their depositions the justice asks the accused if he wishes to have them read again and if he does not dispense with the reading they are read again. But sec. 683 contains more and it is the additional part which causes the confusion. The history of the legislation is somewhat interesting though not as illuminating as in some cases. In The Criminal Procedure Act, ch. 174, R. S. C. , 1886, sec. 69 contains the substantive provisions of the present sec. 682. Then sec. 70 provides that After the examinations of all the witnesses for the prosecution have been completed the justice shall, without requiring the attendance of the witnesses, read or cause to be read to the accused, the depositions taken...
