M., Who Died at Leipzig, June 13, 1843-Aged Twenty-Six Years In the winter of 1838 - 9 a vacancy occurred in the Greek Tutorship of Harvard University, which Mr. Wheeler was called upon temporarily to fill, and a full confirmation in the office soon succeeded to the first provisional appointment. In this way he became a member of the government of the University in which he had been educated, and towards the instructions of which he had from his early childhood eagerly turned. The relation with his Alma Mater which was thus established was continued till the end of the last academical year, at which period he resigned his office in contemplation of a tour and residence abroad. During the last two years of his residence at Cambridge he had also fulfilled the duties of Instructor in History, and had devoted no inconsiderable attention to studies in this department of education.
