Major-General B. R. Johnsons Statement of the Explosion of the Mine at Petersburg, July 3rd, 1864. On the 27th of July, 1864, the enemy was observed to be moving large forces to the north side of the James--to be showing much activity in that direction, leading us to anticipate some active operations there. This was, no doubt, a piece of strategy or a trick to deceive us; and it had, to a certain extent, that effect, for movements were made on our side correspondingly. General Fields division, which had been holding the part of our line of defences on the right of my division, was taken out of the trenches, and Colquitts brigade, of Hokes division, was temporarily transferred to my command, in exchange of Grades brigade, and I was left to hold, with less force, defences double the length,...
