A compilation of obscure historical papers and correspondence concerning Ecuador, The Llanganati Mountains, Inca Treasure and the Derrotero de Valverde presented to The Royal Geographical Society around the turn of the century! These papers tell an intriguing and timeless tale that begat many! On the Mountains of Llanganati, in the Eastern Cordillera of the Quitoian Andes by Richard Spruce Travels in Ecuador by Jordan Stabler The Inca Treasure of Llanganati by E.C. Brooks Over the past century numerous explorers have conducted countless expeditions into the Llanganati Mountains of Ecuador utilizing Spruce's paper as the basis for their quest of hidden Inca gold. Many of these explorers, including the world renowned Llanganati expert Eugen K. Brunner, conducted their quests oblivious to the entirety of Spruce's paper, of which only a portion had been published in his work Notes Of A Botanist on the Amazon Andes. Without access to Spruce's entire paper and the works of Stabler and Brooks, many years of explorations were in vain. Now, all three works can be read together relating an intriguing tale of many...
