lulu.com. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 272 pages. Lon Chaney There is nothing more frightening than a clown after midnight. Hello, Im the clown. Its after midnight. A winter comes along and you are nine. It brings snow, a friend and a lame pup in a world of caring mom and just what you wish. Knowing is winter terror that meets the scream which is a child framework of pain and never oblivion. The impossible to change doomsday as he walks through the door of Gods counting house to the sky heave of one almighty crack of thunder. Want to be nine at Christmas forever Ill show you. Come close. How about some freaks When I was a boy, the September carnival was 3 blocks from my house, I would stand with tremble at the terrifying gibbering posters of the freak show tent always apart from the camy, in the dark ashamed. . Theres the alligator man with a horror of legal jurisprudence that makes him kill and kill again the monster he will only find from inside himself in sweaty hell revenge. The good thing about horror is its everywhere. At a prep school in Connecticut here a boy wears a scarf to hide the worst secret of all, the most heinous crime a boy can commit. And in this world of angst, he simply is crazy, in their prosaic midst. He will take that scarf blood incrustated off and mad jolts of sickness will rush out. A teenaged Frankenstein a mans only friend, and which mask is which, as he walks down November streets of your small town, in his own indefatigable dream because a real being does not throw a friend away. Court the cost of disfigured loneliness and have a...
