THE CENGAGE ESSENTIAL REFERENCE CARD TO THE MLA HANDBOOK FOR WRITERS OF RESEARCH PAPERS

OVERVIEW: Updates from the
MLA Handbook
8th edition (2016)

The types of sources we use in research projects are always evolving, and the new 8th Edition demonstrates an approach to simplify the task of citing them. Instead of asking writers to learn complex formats for each type of source, this book emphasizes using simple, consistent rules to cite sources and making the whole citation easier. This new 8th Edition can eliminate mistakes when writing sources for your list of works cited, every source category, every contribution. But we're not stopping there.

The Core Elements of a Works Cited Entry

1. Author	Who created the source you are citing? Use the name you know of the author, not the real name.
2. Title of source	The title of the specific source you are citing. Use the title as it appears on the source, not the title of the container.
3. Title of container	The title of a larger work containing the source you are citing. When a source stands alone (like a whole book or movie), you do not need to cite a container.
4. Other contributors	Individuals who contributed to the work, such as editors, translators, or performers.
5. Version	Information about a source that appears in more than one format, such as a book or a video recording.
6. Number	Number indicating the source's place in a sequence, such as an issue or chapter number, or a volume number, or a page and chapter number, for reference.
7. Publication information	Information that provides an address for the source, including a URL, publisher, or sponsor.
8. Publication date	When the source was made available to the public. This might be a year, a month, a specific date, or even a specific URL.
9. Location	Where to find a specific source. This could be page numbers for print sources or DOIs for digital sources, or the location of a film or performance.
