Not illustrated. 1783 Excerpt: .the estimation in which it was held by the French is, that when they destroyed the fortifications of the other islands, they continued to spend very very large sums in adding to the works upon Dominica. This is a circumstance, which, whilst it shews the value of the island, affords no slight evidence of the resolution and firmness wherewith the restorations of the, eighth article of the Preliminary Treaty were insisted upon, in the course of the negotiation. With regard to the West Indies, one would think it impossible that any man, excepting a planter on the ceded island, should dare to complain. The Treaty, in respect to that quarter, is vastly more honourable than the Peace of Paris was at the close of the last war, though that was a war of conquest. The four next articles, which are relative to Africa, will not be found liable A R t c L E IX, The King of Great Britain shall cede and guarantee, in full right, to his most Christian Majesty, the river liable to any material objections. As the French had taken Senegal, which original river of Senegal and its dependencies, with the forts of St. Louis, Podor, Gelam, Arguin, and Portendie. His Britannic Majesty shall restore, likewise, the island of Goree, which shall be given up in the condition in which it was when the British arms took possession of it. Article X. The most Christian King shall,...
