Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Utah Since Statehood, Historical and Biographical, Vol. 2: Illustrated Thomas Kearns was born on a farm near Woodstock, in Oxford county, Ontario, Canada, April 11, 1862. His people were Irish emigrants. His father, Thomas Kearns, had settled in Canada, there marrying Margaret Maher and supporting his family by farming. When Thomas was a lad of seven or eight years his parents removed from Canada to Nebraska, where the father engaged in farming and stock raising in Holt county. Thomas Kearns acquired a common school education but was forced to lay aside his textbooks before he was seventeen years of age and provide for his own support. He had early become familiar with all the duties and labors incident to farm life, as he had assisted in the cultivation and development of the old homestead. This was at the time of the gold excitement in the Black Hills and young Kearns naturally believed that there would be found opportunities far greater and that the field in which he might there exercise his ability promised more results than the restricted sphere of farm...
