Excerpt: . the man and the commander turns to me with, Well, what did I tell you? And so we got our orders for the Sioux campaign of 1876. To the officers, of course, it was an old story. There was not one of our number who had not seen hard campaigning and sharp Indian lighting before. But could we have had our choice, we would have preferred some less abrupt announcement. Hardly a word was spoken as the group broke up and the ladies sought their respective homes, but the bowed heads and hidden faces of many betrayed the force of the blow. The officers remained with General Carr to receive his instructions. There was no time to lose, and the note of preparation sounded on the spot. General Sheridan s orders directed four companies from Fort Hays to proceed at once to Cheyenne by rail, and there await the coming of the more distant companies --eight in all, to go on this, the first alarm. Companies A, B, D, and K were designated to go; E to stay and take care of the shop. Those to go were commanded by married officers, each of whom had to leave wife and family in garrison. E had a bachelor captain, and a lieutenant whose better half was away in the East, so the ladies of the regiment were ready to mob the general for his selection; but there was wisdom in it. In ten minutes...
