Excerpt from The Free Trade Policy of the Liberal Party: A Speech Delivered at Pendleton, September 30, 1868 ON Wednesday evening, September 30th, 1868, at the Pendleton Club, Charlestown, Henry Rawson, Esq., in the chair, Professor J. E. Thorold rogers spoke as follows upon the free trade policy of the Liberal party. Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen, - There are, perhaps, several reasons Why at the plesent crisis the attention, not of you only, but also of all the electors througout Great Britain and Ireland, should be called to that financial history which is implied in the heading to the address I purpose giving you this evening. My friend, Mr. Rawson, has alluded to the fact that the great battle of free trade - that is, the liberation of your bread from the tax of the monopolist - was achieved 22 years ago. As a consequence, a very large number of persons in this meeting must be unaware of how great and continuous were the struggles by which that victory was won. We are told in the sacred page that, after the great blessing...
